Black splendor bathed in sunlight

At home, Hopper, Sol+Luna, Sensu

Throwing some pool shade becomes a luxury with Sensu. This black shade offers a clean canvas that doesn't distract the views from the Hopper combo and the architecture of the villa.

The free-hanging shade leaves all the space available on and under the table. Thanks to the tilting and rotating function, this umbrella casts shade wherever you like, all day long.

A loungy moment

Wrapped in sandy colors, this patio is the coziest spot in the garden. Although casting a broad canopy of shadow, the Sensu shade doesn't interfere with the cushy atmosphere thanks to a minimalist design and neutral color.

A buffet of shade

Refreshing shade is a must when offering delicious dishes - we wouldn't want any guests to melt away, right? Better to leave this part for the cheese.

But jokes aside, restaurant patios need shade, and preferably without cutting down on patio space with a forest of umbrella poles and bulky bases. Well, that's possible!
